

AUSTRALIAN CUSTOMS NOTICE NO. 2003/33

Notice of objection - Section 135 of the Copyright Act 1968

The Copyright Act 1968 (the Copyright Act) allows the owner and exclusive licensee of the copyright in copyright material to object to the importation of infringing copies – that is, copies of copyright material that would have infringed their copyright had those copies been made in Australia by the importer.

The owner or the exclusive licensee of the copyright does this by lodging a Notice of Objection under the Copyright Act with the Australian Customs Service (Customs). Unless revoked or declared to be ineffective, a Notice of Objection remains in force for whichever is the shorter of the following two periods:

- (a) the period of two years commencing from the date the Notice was given to Customs; or
- (b) the period for which the copyright in the copyright material to which the Notice relates is to subsist.

The attached Schedule sets out the copyright owners and exclusive licensees who have lodged a Notice of Objection, and a description of the copyright material in respect of which the copyright is owned or exclusively licensed. The Notices notify the objections of the copyright owners and exclusive licensees to the importation of infringing copies.

Customs may seize infringing copies to which a Notice of Objection that is in force applies while the copies are subject to the control of Customs if they were imported for:

- sale, lease for hire, or by way of trade offer or exposure for sale or hire; or
- distribution for the purpose of trade; or
- distribution for any other purpose to an extent that will affect prejudicially the owner or exclusive licensee of the copyright in the copyright material; or
- exhibition in public by way of trade.

People intending to import goods that may be liable to seizure under the provisions of the Copyright Act should consider seeking advice from Customs, or a suitably qualified legal practitioner, as to the implications of the Copyright Act.

Copies of the relevant Notices of Objection have been forwarded to the Customs office in the capital city of each State and Territory. Importers, or their advisers, who require further information regarding the Notices of Objection, or Customs' role in respect of those Notices, should contact the Customs Information Centre on 1300 363 263 or the Intellectual Property Rights Group on (02) 6275 6577.
