

AUSTRALIAN CUSTOMS NOTICE NO. 2003/05

Notices of objection to importation - Trade Marks Act 1995

The Trade Marks Act 1995 allows the registered owner, or in certain circumstances, the authorised user of a trademark to object to the importation of goods which infringe their trademark. The registered owner, or authorised user does this by lodging a Notice of Objection with the Australian Customs Service (Customs). Unless revoked, a Notice of Objection remains in force for a period of two years from the date of commencement.

The attached Schedule sets out the registered owners and authorised users who have lodged Notices of Objection under the Trade Marks Act 1995. The Notices notify the objections of these registered owners and authorised users to the importation of goods which infringe their trade mark or trade marks. Descriptions of the relevant trade marks are also set out in the Schedule.

For each particular trade mark described, the Schedule makes reference to a particular "class" of goods. This refers to the classes of goods prescribed in Schedule 1 to the Trade Marks Regulations 1995 and along with a description of the goods, is used to describe the type of goods for which the particular trade mark is registered. Prospective importers of such goods should seek further advice from Customs regarding the ambit of any Notice of Objection set out in the Schedule.

Where goods of the kind referred to manufactured outside and imported into Australia:

- have applied to them, or in relation to them, a sign that is substantially identical with, or deceptively similar to, a trade mark listed in the Schedule; and
- fall within a class of goods for which the relevant trade mark is registered, they are liable to be seized by Customs unless it can be established that:

- the goods are being imported otherwise than for the purposes of trade (sale, lease, hire, etc.); or
- the goods do not infringe the relevant trade mark.

Part 12 of the Trade Marks Act 1995 details the circumstances in which the use of a trade mark may, or may not, amount to an infringement. For example, a trade mark is not infringed where the mark in question has been applied to, or in relation to, goods with the consent of the registered owner of the trade mark. However, where the trade mark is applied by, or with the consent of, an overseas owner of the trademark and the goods are imported into Australia without the consent of the Australian trade mark owner, this may still represent an infringement.

People who have been intending to import goods that may be liable to seizure under the provisions of the Trade Marks Act 1995 should consider seeking advice from Customs, or a suitably qualified legal practitioner, as to the implications of the trade marks legislation, and the meaning of terms such as "substantially identical with", "deceptively similar to" and "an infringement of" a trade mark.

The trade mark owners' contact particulars have been included in the Schedule to assist importers who may wish to contact the owner regarding use of the trade marks in question.

Copies of the relevant Notices of Objection have been forwarded to the Customs office in the capital city of each State and Territory. Importers, or their advisers, who require further information regarding the Notices of Objection, or Customs' role in respect of those Notices, should contact the Customs Information Centre on 1300 363 263 or the Intellectual Property Rights Group on (02) 6275 6577.
